

After graduation from the Museum School, dad travelled to Europe in 1929 for further study in Paris and Florence. This was one of the pieces he created - having done all the cutting grinding and polishing himself. He also travelled to Naples and Capri. He exhibited his works on return to Boston and began working from his little house in Rockport.