KE Zhaoliang (c. 1856–c. 1911)

Ke Zhaoliang (c. 1856–c. 1911), a native of Nanhai (present-day Guangzhou), Guangdong, courtesy name Guansheng, was the younger son of Ke Youzhen. His studio's name was Limu shanfang. He and his elder brother Zhaoming had learned seal carving from their father since a young age. Despite his inclination towards the Xiling masters, his seal carving reveals an influence from the Han tradition and books of ancient seals. He published his seal book Limu shanfang yingao.
